At the Library story hour Saturday afternoon, the children enjoyed a special treat. After looking over the bird pictures they were taken into the basement and enjoyed a gay time playing games, singing songs, and popping corn. Pop-corn and little cakes were devoured, and this closing hour was a specially happy one. The "Story Hour" has been so successful we hope it may be continued next winter.

The U. S. Government in its "Pure Food Law" does not "indorse" or "guarantee" any preparation, as some manufacturers in their advertisements would make it appear. In the case of medicines the law provides that certain drugs shall be mentioned on the labels, if they are ingredients of the preparations. Ely's Cream Balm, the well-known family remedy for cold in the head, hay fever and nasal catarrh, doesn't contain a single injurious drug, so the makers have simply to print the fact that it complies fully with all the requirements of the law.

Used Axe on Small Boy.

The Richmond Gazette of last week contained the following item concerning a former St. Johnsbury boy:

Eugene Marie, who came from St. Johnsbury some time ago and is partially deranged, who has been cared for in the family of William Wright of Mystic, Can., committed a murderous assault Wednesday on a six-years old son of Allan Fay, who lives about a mile from Mystic. Marie, who is about 50 years old and considered harmless, was accustomed to go to Fay's to play with Fay's boys. Wednesday afternoon they were in the barn, when Marie suddenly seized an axe and struck the young lad over the head, cutting a serious gash and fracturing his skull. A brother, who was with them, ran to the house and informed his mother, who came to the rescue. Marie had continued his attack on the boy, but was finally driven off. The injured lad was taken to a Montreal hospital on the evening train, and was operated on. Reports from there Thursday were to the effect that the lad may recover. Marie made no effort to escape, apparently not realizing what he had done.

The Minstrel Jubilee.

Lew Dockstader or Cohan and Harris went "have anything on" the big show now being promoted by the local favorites, Ellis, Moore and French. Realizing that the "First Part" is the principal event in an entertainment of this kind, no pains or expense will be spared to make this one a "hummer" from overture to finale. The overture, by the way, is more elaborate than anything ever seen here before and Mr. and Mrs. Brooks C. Peters have been engaged to assist in staging and directing the same. All the best local talent are working hard to make the affair a notable success. New Music Hall is the place. Friday, April 23, is the date, and "Unlimited Laughter" is the promise. Don't Miss the Big Noise.

The People's Newspaper.

The Boston Daily Globe an Education in Its Features, Which Meet the Wants of All. Residents of all parts of New England realize more and more the necessity of having the Boston Daily Globe delivered at their homes. It is essential because it covers the news thoroughly, faithfully, cleanly and without bias. A reader of the Boston Globe knows what is going on in the world, his state, and in his town or city.

But the Daily Globe does much more than cover the news well. It is a liberal education delivered at the homes of New England at a merely nominal price. It is filled with interesting features which aid the reader to become a more useful citizen. No better start can be made toward this end than the formation of the saving habit. The first step is to have a bank account, and the Daily Globe stands ready to place sums from $100 to $500 to the credit of enterprising boys and girls throughout New England.

The Globe's savings coupons are with in the reach of all readers of the Daily Globe, and in addition to the cash prizes offered for them, there is a long list of baseball goods, cameras, hatpins, stickpins and cut-up picture puzzles which are distributed weekly. No ambitious boy or girl in New England can afford to let this opportunity go by if real success in life is the goal.

The Daily Globe is the newspaper filled with optimism. Its features are of the helpful kind. Its biographical sketches are telling examples of what great Americans have achieved, and a careful reading of them cannot fail to be an inspiration to the old and young alike. These biographical sketches are illustrated and worth saving, for they contain in condensed and graphic form all the essential of great lives.

The many other features in the Daily Globe which for years have been helpful to thousands of readers, are better and better each week. The practical school house page, the exchange of ideas in the Boys' and Girls' column, the Famous Gems of Prose, Your Favorite Selection, choice bits of humor and daily puzzles, the serial story, the daily short story, all contained in the Daily Globe, in addition to the news, make New England's favorite paper a welcome visitor in every home.

A Play that Frightened England.

How England, which remained deaf for years to the warnings of her military experts that she should create a national army, has been frightened into recognition of her military defencelessness by a crude melodrama, is told by Sydney Brooks, writing from London, in the issue of Harper's Weekly for March 20th.

An Englishman's Home, the play which has aroused the country, describes the fate of one Mr. Brown, a typical middle-class Englishman, and his family, the "dramatised fools" of Kipling, devoted to "sport" and sneering at the possibility of invasion. Under cover of a fog a hostile army lands, and Mr. Brown's house is occupied. The helplessness of the volunteers who come to the defence is shown. Finally Mr. Brown, in desperation, seizes a rifle, discovers its use, and fires into the ranks of the enemy. He is captured and brought before Prince Yoland, the leader of the invading army. As a civilian who offered resistance he is entitled to no consideration. "Take him out and shoot him," says Prince Yoland—and Mr. Brown is led to his execution.

"What great soldiers and statesmen and orators have failed to do, this play has succeeded in doing," says Sydney Brooks. "It has opened the eyes of the ordinary indifferent citizen. It has painted for him the degradation that fatally awaits both the nation given up to 'sport' and the individual who has not started the elementary duty of learning how to defend his country."

Young Men Wanted.

United States Government Gives Railway Mail Clerks $800 a Year to Start, and Increases to $1200.

Uncle Sam will hold an examination for Railway Mail Clerks in St. Johnsbury and throughout the United States on May 15. Many ambitious young men, with only a very ordinary school education, can readily pass. The government wants young men over 18 with common sense, to take examinations for railway mail clerks and carriers, and the Government Positions Bureau, of Rochester, N. Y., with its peculiar knowledge of the requirements of the examination, can fit any man in a short time to pass. A government position means steady work, good pay, and a yearly vacation. There is time to prepare for the May 15 examinations, and any reader of the CALEDONIAN can get full information how to proceed, free of charge, by writing The Government Positions Bureau, 526 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.
